Conservation of Virginia's Native Plants

The mounting threats to our native flora and how they are being addressed will be Chris Ludwig's topic in a Zoom presentation this Wednesday, January 13, from 7 to 9 p.m. The talk is being presented by the Virginia Native Plant Society. You must register for this talk. To do so, and for more information, go to the VNPS site.

Ludwig is a co-author of the Flora of Virginia and has been the Flora of Virginia Project's president since its beginning in 2001. He recently retired as chief biologist with the Virginia Natural Heritage Program of the Virginia Department of Conservation and Recreation, where he worked from 1988 to 2019.
